THE RHODE ISLAND EARLY INTERVENTION PROGRAM

Welcome!

We are delighted to offer this guide as a resource for your family. This guide has basic information about Early Intervention (EI), your rights and responsibilities and some resources you might find helpful.

What is Early Intervention?

Early Intervention is a voluntary program that provides early identification, services, and support to eligible children (from birth to three years old) and their families. The purpose of Early Intervention is to help young children to be active and successful participants in a variety of settings - in their homes with their families, in childcare, in preschool programs, and in the community.

The overall vision for what we hope children and their families achieve as a result of Early Intervention is that:

- Children have positive social relationships.
- Children acquire and use knowledge and skills.
- Children take appropriate actions to meet their needs.
- Families understand their children's strengths, abilities, and special needs.
- Families understand their rights within the law and effectively communicate their children's needs.
- Families help their children develop and learn.
- Families have adequate social support.
- Families access services and activities that are available to all families in their community.

Who is Eligible for EI?

Infants and toddlers from birth to three

- experiencing developmental delays,
- with certain diagnosed conditions, or
- whose circumstances are likely to result in significant developmental problems.

All children grow and learn at different rates, but most develop a basic set of skills by a certain age. Children who have developmental delays may have special challenges or conditions that need attention. The Early Intervention Program helps families learn how to best help their child.

How "Early Intervention" Works

One of the key aspects of the EI program is for parents and the EI staff to work together as a team. Each family will have an Early Intervention Service Coordinator. The Service Coordinator will begin by learning about your child and his/her daily routines, including what your child enjoys, what is difficult for your child and family, and your child's medical history and development. Your Service Coordinator will also talk with you about any concerns you have about your child.

The Family's Role in Early Intervention

Families are encouraged to actively participate in the Early Intervention Program. The EI staff is sensitive to family differences and can work with families in meeting the needs of their child and family to assist them. Please talk with the Early Intervention staff about your concerns and priorities and let them know what is working for you and what is not.

Some suggestions for making the most of each visit include:

- Schedule your visits during times that are best for your child and family. Actively participate in all visits.
- Write down any questions you may have.
- Ask to be shown anything you do not completely understand. Practice the strategies together during the visit and between visits during your daily routine.
- Make notes about what is working and what is not. Most of the progress your child makes in Early Intervention happens between visits when you practice new strategies during your every day routines. Share your thoughts with your Service Coordinator.
- Please call us as soon as possible if you need to cancel or reschedule a visit.

Natural Environments

What's unique about Early Intervention is that services are provided in "natural" environments. Research shows that children learn best when they practice new skills during their daily routines, and activities. Family members and/or caregivers do the actual "hands-on" work throughout the day, as opportunities arise with service providers acting as teachers, consultants, and coaches.

Development of the Individualized Family Service Plan

After a child is determined eligible for Early Intervention, the Early Intervention staff and the family design a plan called the Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP). This plan outlines the child's strengths and needs. It is developed based on the information gathered from an evaluation or assessment and the concerns and priorities of the family. It includes individualized strategies and supports that can be used to meet the desired outcomes or goals in the IFSP. The plan (IFSP) is reviewed every six months or as needed. Families may request an IFSP review at any time and must agree to any changes that are made in a child's IFSP.

Parent Consultants

Every EI program has a Parent Consultant. Each Parent Consultant has a child(ren) who has been in Early Intervention. They work with families to share resources, provide support and help EI families connect with other families in the program. They also help as families transition out of EI.

If you are interested in learning more about the Parent Consultant Program, please contact RI Parent Information Network (RIPIN) at 401-270-0101. RI Parent Information Network provides information, support, and training to empower parents, families and individuals to become effective advocates for themselves and their families.

RI Interagency Coordinating Council

The RI Interagency Coordinating Council (ICC) is an advisory committee whose membership is appointed by the Governor of Rhode Island. The ICC provides a forum for public input from families, service providers, and other stakeholders regarding federal and state policies on the Early Intervention Program. Meetings are open to the public. For more information on ICC meetings, please contact, Lisa Landry-Testa, ICC Chair, at 444-8485.

Rhode Island Early Intervention Certified Providers

Anyone, including parents, can make a referral to the Early Intervention Program. For more information on which Early Intervention programs serve your city or town, please call RI Parent Information Network at 401-270-0101.

Family Rights

All families in Early Intervention have specific rights under federal law. These rights are identified in The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) that supports special education for children with disabilities or developmental delays. Part C of this law covers services for infants and toddlers and guarantees certain rights, called procedural safeguards, for their families.

Timely development of the Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP)

All families have the right to a timely, multidisciplinary evaluation and/ or assessment and a meeting to initiate an IFSP within forty-five (45) calendar days from their referral to the Early Intervention program.

Written Prior Notice

Written prior notice must be given to the family at least seven (7) calendar days before the EI program can start, stop, or change an evaluation, placement, or services to the child and family. The notice must include the action that is being proposed or refused, the reasons for taking the action and the family's rights, including a description of how to file a complaint if needed. All prior written notices must be in the parent's native language unless it is clearly not feasible to do so.

Use of a Parent's Native Language or Preferred Mode of Communication

It is a family's right to thoroughly understand all activities and written records about their child. If families prefer another language or way of communicating, Early Intervention will get an interpreter if possible. The Early Intervention Program wants families to understand so that they can be an informed team member and decision maker.

Parental Consent

Parental consent means the parent, or legal guardian, has been fully informed about the evaluation, assessment, or service that is about to take place; and they agree with it. Parental consent may be withdrawn at any time. Refusing services may be done at any time without jeopardizing other EI services that the child and family are receiving. If a parent does not consent, the EI Program will make every reasonable effort to ensure that they:

- Are fully aware of the nature of the evaluation and assessment of the services that would be available; and
- Understand that their child will not be able to receive the evaluation, assessment, or services until consent is given.

Surrogate Parents

A "surrogate parent" is appointed for the child when the child is a ward of the state and the parent(s) have waived their right to make decisions in Early Intervention, the parent's whereabouts are unknown, or parental rights have been terminated. A surrogate parent may represent the child in all matters relating to the evaluation and assessment of the child and the development and implementation of the child's IFSP.

When a child approaches age three and is about to transition from Early Intervention, an Educational Advocate replaces the Surrogate so the child may be represented during the eligibility process for Special Education. The Surrogate and Educational Advocate may be the same person, as the child bridges Part C (Early Intervention) and Part B (Special Education) of the Individuals with Disabilities Act. Your Service Coordinator will guide you through this process.

Confidentiality and Release of Information

Early Intervention providers must ensure the protection of any personally identifiable information collected, used, or maintained consistent with state and federal laws. The Early Intervention Program needs the family's written permission to get a child's records from other providers, the records that the Early Intervention Program will develop will not be shared with anyone without written permission.

Review of Records

Early Intervention must give families the opportunity to review any EI records relating to their own child. The Early Intervention agency must comply with a family's request without unnecessary delay, and no more than forty-five (45) calendar days after the request has been made.

Parents have the right to inspect and review only the information relating to their child, or to be informed of that specific information, if the EI record includes information on more than one child.

Resolving Disagreements

If you disagree with the plan or services outlined in your child's Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP), you are dissatisfied with the services you are receiving, or feel your rights have been violated; you should first speak with your Service Coordinator about the situation and try to resolve it with your IFSP team. If you are not able to come to an agreement, you should ask to speak to the program supervisor or the program director so that you can discuss your concerns with them. Your program's parent consultant may also be helpful.

Mediation

The quickest way to resolve a concern is to talk with a service coordinator, parent consultant, program supervisor or program director. However when a family feels these avenues have not worked, they may submit a formal written complaint. Mediation will be offered as a voluntary step. A trained, impartial mediator will facilitate problem solving between the family and the Early Intervention Program. If an agreement that satisfies both parties cannot be reached, the family can have a due process hearing to resolve the complaint. Mediation will not slow down the hearing process.

Requests for mediation can be sent Rhode Island Department of Human Services, The Early Intervention Program, Center for Child and Family Health, Hazard Building #74, West Rd., Cranston, RI 02920

Due Process Hearing

A parent may request a due process hearing regarding Early Intervention's proposal or refusal to initiate or change the identification, evaluation, placement, or provision of appropriate early intervention services by submitting a written request for a due process hearing.

Written requests for a due process hearing are sent to: Rhode Island Department of Human Services, The Early Intervention Program, Center for Child and Family Health, Hazard Building #74, West Rd., Cranston, RI 02920. Details for the written request are posted on the Department of Human Service website at www.dhs.ri.gov or by calling the Department of Human Service Info Line at 462-5300.

Assistance from the Department of Human Services

Staff at the Department of Human Services can assist families and Early Intervention providers by answering questions, offering information, and directly interacting with families and Early Intervention staff. Families can call the DHS Information Line at the Department of Human Services at (401) 462-5300.

Resources at Hasbro Children's Hospital and other Lifespan Hospitals

Frequent Flyers is a service available for children with special health care needs & their families. The purpose of Frequent Flyers is to facilitate admission to the hospital for children with frequent admissions. Any family with a child who is a frequent user of a Lifespan hospital (RI Hospital, Hasbro Children's Hospital, Miriam Hospital, Bradley Hospital, and Newport Hospital) can access this service. The database consists of a summary of the child's medical condition, medications and allergies, common presenting problems, and how they are managed. It also includes the family's comments, child's photo, primary and specialty physicians, home care providers, and emergency contacts. Parents are provided with a secure home-based access to their child's database and can email or send in updates. For more information, contact the Family Center at Hasbro Children's Hospital at 444-3201.

Max All Star Kids is a program for families who have a child with a chronic and/or life-threatening medical condition. The goals of this program are to relieve pain and distressing symptoms and provide services that enhance the comfort and quality of life for the child and family. For more information, contact the Hasbro Children's Hospital Foundation at 444-5685.

The Lending Library at Hasbro Children's Hospital offers a lending library free to all Hasbro Children's Hospital patients and their parents. The general public is also welcome to use the Family Resource Center for a small annual fee. The library is located at the Hospital's Family Resource Center, first floor, room 118 and is open Monday – Friday, 9:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m. If you need assistance, call the center at 401- 444-6090 to make an appointment for a staff member to be on hand. .

RI Medical Assistance Program

There are four ways that children may become eligible for Medical Assistance Coverage: 1) Supplemental Security Income (SSI), 2) Katie Beckett, 3) Adoption subsidy through DCYF, or 4) RIte Care or RIte Share. Each of these ways has a different application process.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) –A child may be eligible to receive SSI benefits if they have a disability and if their parents' income meets the income requirements. Children eligible for SSI automatically are eligible to receive Medical Assistance. For more information, please call (800) 772-1213.

Katie Beckett – Katie Beckett is an eligibility provision of the Medical Assistance Program that provides Medical Assistance coverage to certain children up to age 19 with long-term disabilities or complex medical needs. Children may be eligible if they meet a specific "level of care criteria such as those typically provided in a hospital, skilled nursing facility, or institutional care facility for the mentally retarded (ICFMR). Also, the child's income and resources, not their parents, are used to determine eligibility. For more information, please call the DHS Info Line at 401-462-5300.

Adoption Subsidy – Children in substitute care (foster care) can also get Medical Assistance coverage. For more information, please call Adoption Services at DCYF: 401-254-7021.

RIte Care – RIte Care is RI's Medicaid managed care program that provides health coverage to families in the Rhode Island Works Program and eligible uninsured pregnant women, parents and children up to age 19. RIte Care enrollees receive their health care through one of three participating health plans: Neighborhood Health Plan of RI; United Healthcare of New England; and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Rhode Island. Eligibility for RIte Care is based on income and family size. For more information, please call the DHS Info Line at 462-5300 or check www.dhs.ri.gov.

RIte Share – RIte Share is RI's premium assistance program that helps families obtain health coverage through their employer's health insurance plan. If eligible, RIte Share will pay all or part of the employee's cost of health insurance. Employers must offer an approved health plan. Eligibility and the application process is similar to RIte Care's. Please call the DHS Info Line for more information: 462-5300.

Childcare & Education:

Early Childhood Transition Coordination and Child Outreach Screening

Child Outreach Screening is a program overseen by the Rhode Island Department of Education and offered through every local school district. It is available to all children ages 3-5. This developmental screening looks at several areas including language, cognition, motor, speech, vision, hearing, behavior and socialization. If areas of concern are identified, a referral will be made to the families' local school system for an evaluation to determine eligibility for preschool special education services. For more information, please contact your local Child Outreach program listed below.

The Paul V. Sherlock Center on Disabilities at RI College provides support to the state's EI programs on early childhood transition coordination through a contract with the Department of Human Services. The purpose of this project is to develop a system that supports children and their families as they transition from an Early Intervention program to public schools and/or other early care and education programs. For more information, please contact Maureen Whelan at (401) 456-4735 or mwhelan@ric.edu.

Some children who are eligible for Early Intervention Services also will be eligible for preschool special education services when they turn 3 years of age and Early Intervention ends. Listed below is the contact information for each school system who will work with those children and families who will be transitioning to preschool special education.

The Children's Network

620 Potters Avenue
Providence, RI 02907
223-0392

The Children's Network is a collaborative partnership that was formed to provide comprehensive services for children of all abilities, ages 3 to pre-kindergarten, and their families at specific childcare facilities in Providence. The Network is a service of Meeting Street School in partnership with Federal Hill House Association, The Genesis Center, John Hope Settlement House, West End Community Center, Beautiful Beginnings, and other family childcare providers. The Children's Network offers mental health services, health and dental care, social services, and educational programs at no cost to families. The Children's Network brings services directly to children, families, and teachers at the partner childcare centers, minimizing transportation and scheduling issues.

Through the Network, families have access to an education coordinator, health consultant, mental health specialist, nutritionist and family advocate. The ultimate goal of all these services is to ensure the children are prepared to enroll and succeed in kindergarten.

Child Opportunity Zone Family Centers

Rhode Island's Child Opportunity Zones (COZs) are school-linked centers that bring schools, families, and communities together to promote success in school for all children and youth. COZs are welcoming places in or near schools where families can participate in programs and receive information, support, services and referrals. Each COZ is unique and bases its programs on the needs and resources of its schools and community.

Child Opportunity Zones (COZs) help families get before- and after-school childcare services, education enrichment, youth development, adult education, parenting education and support, preventive health and safety information, and health screening and referrals. For more information in your community, visit The Rhode Island Department of Education website at www.ride.ri.gov and follow the Before and After School link.

Early Head Start and Head Start

Early Head Start is a national program that provides comprehensive child development services to families with children under 3 and to pregnant women. The purpose of Early Head Start is to enhance children's development, enable parents to be better caregivers and teachers to their children, and to help parents meet their own goals, including that of economic independence.

Head Start is a national program that provides comprehensive child development services to preschool children ages 3-5 and social services for their families. Specific services for children in Head Start focus on: education, social and emotional development, physical and mental health, and nutrition. Contact RI Parent Information Network at 270-0101 for information on Early Head Start or Head Start in your area.

Home Instruction for Parents of Preschool Youngsters (HIPPY)

Supported by RI Parent Information Network (RIPIN), HIPPY is a home visiting program for parents of children 3-5 years of age. It provides support for the development of school readiness skills and gives parents opportunities to meet other parents with children of the same age. HIPPY is in 4 communities: Central Falls, Cranston, Johnston, and Pawtucket. There is no fee for participation. For more information, contact RIPIN at 270-0101 or (800) 464-3399 – toll free in RI only

Options for Working Families

Options for Working Families helps parents looking for childcare. This organization has a statewide listing of licensed childcare centers, family childcare homes, nursery schools, summer camps, and before and after school care programs. Options for Working Families also assists U.S. Military personnel to and afford child care that suits their unique needs. <http://www.optionsforfamilies.org/>
